About Taiwan Pavilion

At the 2024 Taipei International Food Show, the Ministry of Agriculture is showcasing Taiwan's agricultural excellence under the theme "Share Taiwan Agriculture with world". The national pavilion features 92 top-quality Taiwanese domestic manufacturers and is divided into five main exhibition areas: premium agricultural products, livestock products, seafood, senior-friendly foods, and rural specialties.

The "Exquisite Agricultural Products Zone" highlights the diversity and superior quality of Taiwanese agricultural products. These natural and healthy ingredients are cultivated using environmentally friendly methods. The exhibit includes fresh vegetables, fruits, and processed specialty products using rice, tea, and honey.

The "Livestock and Poultry Products Zone" features a variety of delicious meat and egg products unique to Taiwan, including processed items like meat floss and sausages, demonstrating Taiwan's advanced agricultural techniques and industry innovation.

The "Seafood Products Zone" showcases Taiwan's rich marine resources and aquaculture techniques. These products are renowned internationally and represent the Ministry of Agriculture's commitment to promoting food safety and certification.

The "Age-Friendly Products Zone" focuses on food products suitable for the elderly, made from high-quality local agricultural products enhanced with food technology to ensure they are both tasty and healthy. The "Rural Good Products Zone" displays creative products from rural communities across Taiwan.

Additionally, the Ministry of Agriculture has set up an area to present Taiwan's agricultural achievements in international market expansion and quarantine consultations. For the first time, the "Farmersbuy" e-commerce platform will be integrated, offering a month-long "Online Taiwan Pavilion" with free shipping promotions, benefiting domestic consumers.

A-MEI Pineapple

A-Mei Pineapple, a company spanning three generations, is dedicated to cultivating the finest, safest, and most delicious pineapples. Their unwavering commitment to quality has earned them the prestigious Shennong Prize—Taiwan's highest agricultural honor—twice: in 1993 and 2021. This remarkable achievement, held by both mother and son, is a testament to their unswerving commitment to excellence. A-Mei Pineapple's dedication to their craft has enabled them to cultivate multiple varieties of pineapple, and their vertical integration ensures the highest quality.

Fang Rong Rice Factory

Established in 1926, Fangrong Rice Factory has now been passed down to its fourth generation, Chang Po-liang. Chang returned home to revitalize the rice mill. His belief that "rice must taste good" guided him to meticulously refine his milling techniques, which earned him a reputation for high-quality rice.

When Taiwan entered the WTO in 2005, the agricultural landscape shifted. Fangrong invited 90 Houbi local farmers to join the Fangrong Rice Production and Marketing Special Zone and established the high-quality rice brand "Wu Mi Le." The following year, Fangrong was crowned National Rice Champion!

Fangrong is committed to drying rice on the same day it is procured; storing unhusked rice kernels, brown rice, and white rice under temperature control; and vacuum packaging to minimize air exposure. Their goal is to provide consumers with the highest quality and most consistent rice, elevating Taiwan's rice consumption habits.

Old Pot Rice Noodles

Along the banks of the Keya River, rice noodles have long been painstakingly crafted. The unique topography and seasonal winds have shaped the flavor of these noodles.

The story of Taiwanese rice noodles began in 1858 when the Guo brothers migrated from Hui'an, in China, to Taiwan.

Upon discovering Hsinchu's ideal rice-growing climate, abundant water, and unique seasonal winds, they set up shop. These noodles quickly became a fashionable delicacy for banquets, prompting the brothers to establish a professional rice noodle factory, marking the beginning of over a century of Hsinchu rice noodles in Taiwan.

Yee Pin Food Co., Ltd.

Jin Sauce – The preserver of Taiwanese classic palate
In Taiwanese culinary culture, sauces play a pivotal role, serving as the soul of dishes and evoking treasured memories of Taiwanese cuisine. However, these traditional sauces have gradually faded into obscurity amid the changing tides of time, while modern consumers seek greater emphasis on ingredient quality and health. To safeguard the legacy of Taiwanese flavors and cater to contemporary preferences, Jin Sauce emerged as a beacon of culinary preservation.

BanTen Enterprise Co., Ltd

Ban Ten Enterprise Co., Ltd was established in 1994. We have also introduced a production and sales traceability system to reach the core values of traceability, local procurement, and transparency in the industry of rice processing. BanTen is committed to the core principle of “local food safety and production traceability” by insisting on domestic ingredients under environmental friendly and medication-use-safety practices. Our goal is to take practical actions to “support local farmers while protecting the land of Taiwan.”

Rihshin (CAN Biotech Ltd.)

日幸 專業醫療團隊

We believe that food brings us joys. Nurturing the everyday happiness of the elderly is Rihshin's founding principle. Our paramount mission is to offer meals that are not only tastier but also embody the essence of Taiwanese cuisine. Dr. Fu Yu-Hsiang, our founder, along with a team of nutritionists and food technicians, devoted 1,000 days to research and development. We gathered feedback from over a hundred professionals and family members to create "Taiwanese Flavor Care Food", which help the elder and those with dysphagia eat safer and happier.
